Gang, Whose Resort in New Allington Hotel is Broken Up, Gets Off Easily

MURDEROUS REVOLVERS, CROOKED DICE, MARKED CARDS, ALL IN EVIDENCE

Men Plead Guilty Who Run "Fixed" Devices for Fleecing Unsuspecting Gamblers; Warrant Out for James E. Boyle

W. H. Corbett, alias John Smith, and F. Johnson were fined $250 and $300 respectively by Police Judge Monarrat this morning. They are two of the men who ran the crooked gambling resort in the New Allington hotel, raided by the police Wednesday night. Both pleaded guilty to the charges against them, and the prosecution asked for a heavy penalty.

An Corbett heard the fine imposed, he turned away from the judge and smiled all over the court room, winking at some acquaintance in the rear. And when Johnson found that he was getting off with a fine of $300, he smiled just for a moment and stepped jauntily forward to pay the money.

The police say that this is one of the craftiest and most dangerous gambling gangs that ever operated in Honolulu. Two murderous revolvers, loaded dice, marked decks of cards, and other devices for fleecing the unwary, the total amounting to probably a double arm-load, were in the court as evidence of the sort of resort these men were running. One glance at the men—hard of face and eye, cool and even nonchalant—showed to any observer their type.

Believing there is sufficient evidence to prove that James E. Boyle, manager of the Paradise of the Pacific, was one of the principals in the poker games conducted in room 10 of the New Allington hotel, a warrant for Boyle's arrest was issued at noon today by order of Attorney Chillingworth. Boyle will be charged with gambling and the police will try to show that he was in the game which was raided Wednesday night until 10 minutes before the detectives appeared.

Boyle is an ex-soldier. One of the men in the game will testify that Boyle was among the players who frequented the room and one or more tenants of the building who have known of the game for some time will be summoned as witnesses.

The maximum sentences which might have been imposed by Judge Monarrat would have been fines of $1000 each, or one year imprisonment for each man, both fine and imprisonment not being allowed under the statutes.

C. L. Watson, who claims to be a soldier belonging to the 105th Company, Coast Artillery, stationed at Fort Ruger, paid a fine of $50 cheerfully. He said he had been out on a furlough which is up today, and that he had to return to his company. When he paid the $50 fine, a chauffeur who knows Watson said, "I'll bet he has a thousand in his pocket." Watson's real name is said by the detectives to be Spencer, and it is rumored he has a sum of money running into five figures in a local bank. Corbett Goes to Jail.

Although Corbett called both Johnson and Watson to his aid as he sat in the prisoner's box with the night's gathering of offenders of all kinds and

Hawaii Picturesquely Represented In Parade On Day of All Nations at San Francisco Fair

Photographs of Hawaii's part in the All-Nations Parade held at the Panama-Pacific Exposition on November 2. Pa-u riders, float and the Hawaiian pineapple are conspicuous. Photos by courtesy of Commissioner John Effinger.

Hawaii was ably and picturesquely represented in the All-Nations Parade at the Panama-Pacific exposition on November 2, according to a letter and photographs received by Fair Commissioner John Effinger from J. Edward Lyons of the Hawaii staff. Writing from the Hawaii building on November 8 he says:

San Francisco, Cal.,
November 8, 1915.

Mr. John Effinger,
Honolulu, T. H.

Dear Mr. Effinger:

Feeling certain that you are still interested in our exhibit at the Fair I take great pleasure in enclosing you a few pictures of our pa-u rider and float which took part in the All-Nations parade held here on San Francisco Day, the 2nd of November.

This is the day that broke all records at the exposition for attendance, totaling some 348,500 people.

The parade was one of the main features of the day and Hawaii was splendidly represented with a pa-u rider, two attendants, and a beautiful float decorated in real Hawaiian grandeur. On the float were a queen, her attendants and the singers of the building. Our princess on horseback with her gorgeous pa-u attracted marked attention and with the strains of "Honi Kana, Waiwahi" and "Aloha Oe" following her closely Hawaii received a steady applause from the thousands of people (the majority of whom have never heard or seen a pa-u before) who were watching the parade pass on. This was a grand chance for Hawaii to show herself, and you can rest assured that she did.

The pineapple people are giving a grand time on Wednesday, and if the weather keeps up as it has the last three days I have every reason to believe Hawaii will score another point.

and make herself more prominent to the outside world than ever before.

Hoping that this will find you enjoying good health, Mr. Wood and the whole force in the building joins in "aloha" to you.

Yours truly,

J. EDWARD LYONS.

JAPANESE WILL ORGANIZE PAID POLICE OF OWN

Local Japanese are planning on forming a little police force of their own to protect their property, according to the latest reports. The men appointed will guard the Japanese section of the city and will be paid out of funds donated by the Japanese.

This is the outgrowth of the situation between the Japanese and the local police. For the last week there has been a wave of crime in the Japanese section of the city. Many homes have been broken into and stores robbed and the Japanese citizens and newspapers claim that the police will not assist them in rounding up the offenders.

On the evening of November 10 Vice-consul K. Fujii was in attendance at the coronation ball at the Alexander Young hotel. While he was away robbers tried to break into his home on Nuuanu street by cutting the screen but as the doors were locked the intruders did not get in. The next evening they came again and tried to gain entrance to the home but were frightened away. Mrs. Fujii saw two men, and stated that they looked like Koreans or Japanese. They came three times that night and finally went away for good.

PROFESSOR YOUNG ON STAND FOR TRANSIT COMPANY ALL MORNING

Further examination of J. M. Young, dean of the school of engineering of the College of Hawaii, consumed the two hours of this morning's session of the trial of the territory's injunction suit against the Honolulu Rapid Transit & Land Company.

Mr. Young's testimony had to do with the rate of depreciation in a plant similar to that of the Rapid Transit, and on matters which are expected will aid the territory in reaching a figure representing the cost of reproducing the plant, which has been made an issue in the case.

W. A. Cattell, civil engineer of San Francisco and an expert on the valuation of street railways, said today that the inventory of the plant of Rapid Transit which he is now making for the company may be completed within a week and a half. His findings may be made a part of the record in the case.

HILLSTROM COLLAPSED AND FOUGHT CAPTORS; THEN CALLED "FIRE!"

Associated Press by Federal Wirelless

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Nov. 19.—Joseph Hillstrom, the I. W. W. leader and convicted murderer executed by shooting this morning, created a sensational scene before the death penalty was inflicted, it is learned. When he was called to go forth and face the firing squad he collapsed unexpectedly in his cell, shrieked and rolled on the floor, tied his cell door with a blanket to prevent its being opened and when guards forced their way in he grabbed a broom and fought them. The sheriff was called and at the sight of this official the man quieted. His last words were addressed to the firing squad. He called "Fire! Let her go!"

SEATTLE, Wash., Nov. 19.—William Busky, an illiterate wanderer, claims that he was with Hillstrom at the time the murder in Salt Lake is said to have been committed. Through friends he telegraphed to Salt Lake City last night protesting that Hillstrom was innocent. No attention was paid to his telegraphic protest as it was believed it was a scheme to delay the execution. Hillstrom denied acquaintance with the man. Busky says he was a witness at the trial.

GERMAN OFFICIAL CABLEGRAMS

The following cable message from official German sources was received today:

"German Headquarters Report, Nov. 19.—Yesterday during the pursuit of the Serbians 50,000 were taken prisoner.

"On the west front, in and near the Argonne and in the Vosges artillery duels are taking place.

"A German air fleet has attacked an English camp west of Poperinghe, Flanders."

It is probable that a typographical error in telegraphic transmission has been made in giving the number of Serbians captured yesterday; and that the number should be 5000.

Gov. Holcome expresses the opinion that in some respects the complaints of old soldiers about conditions at the home at Norton are well founded.

Allies Seeking To Draw China Into Fold of Entente Powers

(Associated Press Service by Federal Wirelless)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 19.—Official circles here have learned of what is regarded as a highly significant move by the Triple Entente Powers, the original members of the Entente Group, Great Britain, France and Russia, to add to the fold China and its developing resources.

It is learned that Britain, France and Russia have united in an effort to add China to the Entente Alliance in order to prevent future friction between China and Japan. It is felt that with the alliances binding Japan to the Entente group, if China were also a member of the group differences between Peking and Tokio could be composed without external disorder and controversy.

If China agrees to join the alliance she will not be expected to participate with her military in the present war.

Italian Government Tells U. S. Ancona Lifeboats Were Shelled

(Associated Press Service by Federal Wirelless)

NAPLES, Italy, Nov. 19.—An official report on the sinking of the Italian liner Ancona in the Tyrrhenian sea a few days ago by an Austrian submarine has been sent to U. S. Ambassador Thomas Nelson Page at Rome by the Italian government.

This report states that after thorough investigation it is found that the submarine shelled without warning the Ancona's wireless apparatus. The captain of the vessel halted his ship but the shelling continued. Lifeboats filled with people and floating in the water were hit by the shells from the submarine's guns and the survivors used clothes in an effort to stop up the holes and prevent the boats from filling and sinking.
